YEAR IN REVIEW - FALL

SEPTEMBER

Middlebury's class of 2020 arrives on campus. About 600 fresh new faces, with nine percent of them coming from over 40 different countries, meet their home for the next four years. Nearly one-fourth of the incoming class are U.S. students of color, and 14 percent of the class are the first generation in their family to attend college. This year's new class comes from a pool of 8,820 applicants, the fourth largest in the school's history. The students accepted come from 49 states (all except North Dakota), Washington, D.C., and 57 countries.

The 2016 Clifford Symposium examines "Fully Present: The Art and Science of Mindful Engagement,"gathering scholars and creative minds for three days of mindfulness activities, workshops, lectures, and screenings. Amishi Jha's keynote address discusses how we can strengthen our brains through various mindfulness techniques.

OCTOBER

October brings families together for Middlebury's annual Fall Family Weekend. Students, their families, and their friends enjoy a multitude of activities. During the weekend, Caroline Snell is awarded the Paul W. Ward '25 Prize in Writing for her submission "Mastery at Any Cost: The Dominance and Damning of Standard of Oil" written for her first-year seminar the previous year.

The SGA unanimously passes a resolution in conjunction with the Black Student Union for the school to fly a Black Lives Matter flag and publicly endorse the movement. The resolution also calls on President Laurie Patton to make a public endorsement of the movement and for the administration to reexamine its recruitment efforts and to examine "why students of color ultimately decide not to attend Middlebury College."

YEAR IN REVIEW - FALL

NOVEMBER

Writer and activist Shaun King speaks at Mead Chapel on the first day of the month to explain "Why We Must Say 'Black Lives Matter.'" Students, faculty, and staff fill every seat and aisle to hear him lecture.

Donald Trump is elected as the 45th president of the United States on November 8th. Students watch results in Crossroads Café and around campus.

250 students protest the election results outside of Mead Chapel, chanting "Not My President," "Stronger Together," and "Love Trumps Hate."

Middlebury students stage a #SanctuaryCampus walkout on November 16th. Hundreds of students walk out of their classes and workplaces to show their support and urge the administration to declare the school as a sanctuary campus for undocumented members of the community.

DECEMBER

Middlebury announces that we have reached carbon neutrality. This means that the institution has balanced the amount of carbon emissions it releases with an equivalent amount sequestered or offset. Middlebury is able to achieve neutrality by the end of 2016 by purchasing forested land that will not be developed.

YEAR IN REVIEW - SPRING

JANUARY

The Debate Society hosts the North American Debate Championships. Over 50 schools compete.

On January 20th, students host "Inspirasianal Voices," a storytelling event about Asian experiences as told by Asian students.

Middlebury College offers 343 students early admission to the Class of 2021. The admitted students are chosen from a pool of 673 applicants—an increase of 6.5 percent over last year. Students of color represent 28 percent of the students admitted.

FEBRUARY

The college celebrates the seniors of the class of 2016.5. The yearly February Celebration witnesses a Mead Chapel Ceremony and the ski down at the Snow Bowl.

As the graduating Feb class skis toward their next adventures, 90 new Febs arrive on campus for the class of 2020.5.

The 94th Winter Carnival is a hit starting with a bonfire and accompanying fireworks outside Ross Commons. The carnival also brings a live performance by Quinn XCII in memory of Murphy Roberts. The Mountain Club hosts a broomball tournament, where teams of students play a simplified version of hockey using brooms and a deflated volleyball, while taking to the ice in street shoes.

Middlebury presents "Beyond the Vagina (Monologues)", an expanded and evolved adaptation of Eve Ensler's original script "The Vagina Monologues." All proceeds from the event are donated to WomenSafe.

MARCH

Middlebury College Activities Board and GO/REFUGE host the MCAB Syria Symposium. They bring together five Muslim women from academic, activist, and literary backgrounds to discuss the Syrian refugee crisis and identify ways Middlebury students can help.

Students protest Dr. Charles Murray, a W.H. Brady Scholar at the American Enterprise Institute (AEI) who was scheduled to deliver a lecture at 4:30 PM in Wilson Hall at the McCullough Student Center. The protests disrupt the lecture and made national news. This lead to a large discussion on campus about freedom of speech.

George Yancy, Professor of Philosophy at Emory University, delivers his lecture " Fear of the Black Body: The Elevator Effect" to a packed Dana Auditorium.

The Middlebury Debate Society hosts a public debate with students who support the Charles Murray protest and students who support AEI's decision to hold the event. President Patton gives opening remarks.

Middlebury College offers admission to 1,350 students in its regular decision round for the Class of 2021. This year's accepted students are selected from among 8,910 applicants, the third largest number in the College's history. Overall, the College has seen a 14.7 percent increase in admitted students of color, as well as an 8.5 percent uptick in international applicants.

YEAR IN REVIEW - SPRING

MAY

The College discusses a new dining plan for the next fall, which would require swiping an ID card to enter dining halls. The Community Council unanimously calls for the College to reassess and change the names of dining menu items that may be deemed offensive.

Middlebury inaugurates the first Korean Cultural Show. The show features more than 60 singers and dancers—15 percent of whom are ethnically Korean—presenting a range of different aspects of Korean culture from the traditional to the sensational to the political and back again.

Students protest the judicial hearings and student probations resulting from the Charles Murray protests.

MCAB brings Sean Kingston to Middlebury for the spring concert on Battell Beach. Kingston performs well-known hits including "Beautiful Girls," as well as some hot new tracks.

The class of 2017 celebrates graduation on Sunday, May 28. 552 students walks across the stage to get their diplomas; the College awarded five honorary degrees.

JUNE

More than 2,000 alumni and family members return to campus from June 9th to June 11th to share memories of their Middlebury College experiences. Those attending Reunion 2017 include three members of the 75th reunion class, the Class of 1942; more than 150 members of the 50th reunion class, the Class of 1967; about 200 members of the 25th reunion class, the Class of 1992; almost 200 members of the 10th reunion class, the Class of 2007; and nearly 250 members of the 5th reunion group, the Class of 2012.

President Laurie Patton marches with the Procession of Classes into Mead Chapel to speak to the gathering at the Reunion Convocation.

The Alumni Achievement Award is presented to Lee Buchheit '72 and Annie Walsh Rimoin '92. Buchheit advises sovereign borrowers on debt management and orchestrated the biggest debt restructuring deal in history by cutting Greece's debt by 100 billion euro. Rimoin, an epidemiologist and associate professor at UCLA, is an international leader in infectious disease research.

The Alumni Plaque, awarded each year to alumni whose "outstanding service to Middlebury has benefited the College, its students and alumni", is presented to Susie Davis Patterson '67 and Bill Carlough '71.
